Picnic Group Hit By Auto, Boy Dies, 6 Others Injured

BELOIT (AP)—A four-year-old Beloit boy was killed, his twin sister critically injured and five others in the family were hurt Sunday when a car smashed into them while they were picnicking. Darrell Betley was killed when the car crushed him against a stone retaining wall at Sugar River Forest Preserve in Illinois, about 15 miles southeast of Beloit. His twin, Diana, suffered fractures in both legs, a broken jaw and various other injuries. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Betley and their three other children — Alan, 2; Arlene, 3, and Wayne, 8 — suffered cuts, bruises and abrasions. All were hospitalized in Beloit. Diana is in critical condition. The accident occurred as the family was walking along a road on the preserve. A car driven by James L. Jordan, 72, also of Beloit, came down a hill and swerved into the family. Jordan, who told police he lost control when the brakes failed, was arrested on a charge of reckless homicide by Rockton, Illinois, authorities.

Problem of Refugees

More Than 3,300,000 Unwanted Homeless in Many Parts of World

BY JAMES MCCARTNEY
Chicago Daily News Service
WASHINGTON — The modern world of turmoil is still producing millions of unwanted refugees. Seventeen years after the close of World War II refugees from political unrest, victims of the turbulent times, continue to accumulate. By the thousands and hundreds of thousands in many quarters of the globe they live in filthy camps — wanting at times for shelter, and often for food and clothing. Many Upheavals
No one knows the precise figures on refugees, but even a rough approximation would place the figure at more than 3,300,000. Today they are products of every kind of upheaval. There are refugees from Chinese Communism in Tibet, simple mountain people seeking havens in India and Nepal — perhaps as many as 60,000. There are others in Africa — more than 100,000 Watutsi tribesmen in the Ruanda-Urundi area, defeated in an election and unwanted by the Hutu tribesmen who were victors. There are Cubans — pouring out of Cuba at a rate, now, of something like 1,000 a week to neighboring Florida, creating a refugee problem of difficult proportions right on the U.S. doorstep. At the same time East German refugees continue to pile up because of the wall in Berlin, building up pressures that state department officials believe to be serious. Even despite the wall, about 100 a week are slipping through at terrible risks to themselves. In Algeria, 350,000 refugees of the Algerian war zones are in what one State Department official described as "critical" condition. Most moved from the borderlands of Algeria to neighboring Tunisia and Morocco. The two largest pockets of refugees — those presenting the

6 Bodies Found, 3 Men Missing In Boat Tragedy

5 of Dead Mangled By Sharks; Cruiser Lost in Heavy Seas

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP)—The bodies of six men, all but one mangled by sharks, were recovered from the wind-whipped ocean near here Sunday. Three others still were missing. The Coast Guard called it the worst sea tragedy in Southern California since 1952 when eight County Superior Court in Washington state on a charge of pocketing $1,900 from the sale of a Cadillac tank and other debris from the 25-foot cabin cruiser on which the nine embarked on a fishing expedition early Saturday.

The craft, known as both the Happy Jack and the Cindy, apparently became swamped in choppy seas and sank Saturday. The Coast Guard reported. Winds were gusting up to 30 miles per hour.

Many Sharks in Area
Sharks still thrashed about the bodies when they were discovered by the fishing boat Mardic. "There were so many sharks for him to say what course of action he had to lower steel into the water to fish out the bodies," said Deputy Coroner Eugene Miller.

The sharks kept after the bodies and several even jumped into the stretchers at the victims as they were being pulled aboard," Miller added. The boat was on its first sea voyage under its owner, Chester McMain, 45, of Norwalk. Miller said autopsies indicated all six men apparently drowned. Shark bites could have been an equal cause of death of five of the men, he said.

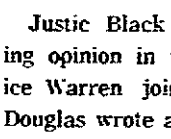

Small Craft Warned
The Coast Guard posted small craft warnings Saturday, advising of rough seas, winds of 20 miles per hour and gusts to 30 mph. with an excessive surface chop due to steady blowing. "A boat that size would bounce around like a cork" in such a choppy sea, an official said. McMain's body was among those recovered.

8 Die in Crash On Marine Base

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP)—Eight persons were killed and four injured Sunday in a two-car crash on this sprawling Marine base.

Four of the dead were children, spokesmen said. They withheld names until notification of kin. Camp Pendleton is about 30 miles north of San Diego. Officials said the cars, which crashed head-on near the San Luis Rey gate, probably belonged to Marine personnel. Both cars were demolished.

U. S. Trying to Clear Way for Laotian Talks

Feuding Princes Fail to Agree on Quick Resumption

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—American diplomats strove today to bring the warring factions in Laos to the conference table but the feuding princes so far could not agree on conditions for resumption of peace talks.

Reliable sources said the U.S. diplomatic effort, backed up by an open show of military might, was making little headway toward getting pro-Communist forces back behind the cease-fire line. Prince Boun Oum's royal government cabled Prince Souvanna Phouma, the neutralist leader vacationing in Paris, to return home for peace talks.

Demands Not Eased
Souvanna agreed, but only if Boun Oum sent a delegation to the rebel headquarters in the Plaine des Jarres for talks with his aides to draft a preliminary agreement.

U.S. ambassadors in Vientiane and Paris served as intermediaries in delivering the exchanges.

Neither the government nor Prince Souvanna showed any inclination to modify their demands. Diplomats in touch with rebel headquarters in Khang Khay said leaders of the Communist Pathet Lao warned that the sooner talks get under way toward setting up a coalition government the better.

Attempts Fail
Souvanna, backed by the United States and Russia, was designated by King Savang Vathana six months ago to form a national unity government.

The neutralist leader made several attempts but they collapsed when the anti-Communist Vientiane leaders demanded the key posts of defense and interior in the coalition government. The Vientiane regime now wants to test Souvanna's ability to control his allies of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao led by his half-brother Prince Souphanouvong.

Jewish Children Found Slain in Algiers Dwelling

ALGIERS (AP)—Two Jewish children were found dead in their homes today with their throats cut and police—suspecting the killings were retaliation for the Secret Army Organization slaughter of Moslems—hunted a Moslem raid. Three Europeans — two priests and a businessman — were reported to have vanished in Algiers and authorities said they apparently were spirited away by Moslems.

Those indications that the Moslem line of restraint was cracking came to light after a pre-dawn attack on a crowded Moslem suburb off that Karto Suwiro, urban community by a secret head of a Darul Islam group, had army commando group that ordered nine of his men to kill caused an undetermined number of casualties.

Prepare to Enter Laos If Necessary

WASHINGTON (AP)—American forces throughout the United States and the Pacific area were under alert today as permission was awaited to land U.S. combat Marines in Thailand, which borders Communist-embattled Laos. Thai officials were expected to agree promptly to the U.S. request for landing of the Marine force in the little kingdom.

The move involving the Marines was ordered by President Kennedy as part of his broad strategy

No Delay Seen in Release of Guards

WASHINGTON (AP)—No consideration is being given to delaying release in August of 145,000 reservists and National Guardsmen because of the new crisis in Laos, informed Defense Department sources said today.

These sources also said that no consideration is being given to calling to active duty any more guardsmen or reservists. President Kennedy announced a month ago that the military reservists and guardsmen called into uniform during the Berlin crisis last fall would be sent home in August "unless there is a serious deteriorating in the international situation in the meantime."

to bolster anti-Communist defenses in Southeast Asia. It also was aimed at getting U.S. troops into position for quick intervention in Laos itself should he decide such action is necessary and desirable.

In rapid developments: The Marine detachment of 2,000 combat-ready men moved into Southeast Asian waters as part of a 7th Fleet aircraft carrier task force. Other elements of the powerful 7th Fleet were steaming toward the crisis area under orders issued Saturday by Kennedy.

Forces Alerted
The President put on alert land, sea and air forces in the United States and the Pacific area. The alert was reported far short of the type of warning that would be given to troops in the event of war. Units alerted included those of the new strike command, which can move swiftly in the event of so-called brush-fire wars.

Gen. Paul D. Harkins, commanding officer of U.S. military advisory forces in South Vietnam, flew to Thailand to confer with officials at Bangkok.

Kennedy's order that the military take "precautionary measures" was designed (1) to put power behind U.S. diplomatic efforts to end peacefully the new outbreak of the Laos fighting and (2) to be prepared for a fight if necessary.

Meets Military Advisers
Kennedy met with his top military and diplomatic advisers Sunday for 70 minutes, his third conference on the Laotian situation in three days. He cut short a session in three days. He cut short a

Democrats Happy After Raising Funds

Biggest Problem Now Facing State Party Is Finding Candidates for Local Office

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MILWAUKEE — Their confidence bolstered by a $200,000 triumph netted through their $100 a plate dinner here during the weekend, leaders of the Democratic state party organization turned to today to the always difficult problem of finding candidates for the competition with the Republicans.

Lucey

Money and local ticket recruitment have been the principal practical problems of the Democratic party since its Wisconsin ascendancy during the last decade.

Chairman Patrick J. Lucey of the party demonstrated here during the weekend that the party knows how to raise money.

He told other party officers at a meeting of the state committee here that an effort comparable to that which was invested in the surprisingly successful financial drive which featured the personal intervention of President Kennedy will be duplicated in the task of finding courthouse, legislative and other candidates.

Lucey didn't say so explicitly, but it may be guessed that the chore of finding candidates in Republican districts will be lightened somewhat because of the evidence of Democratic headquarters solvency. There may be some help from the party to the local office-seekers, according to all appearances.

About $100,000 of the net proceeds of the Kennedy dinner was pledged to the national party coffers. But even the $100,000 or thereabouts remaining for the state party organization is far more than the machine has ever before had or hoped to have at this stage of the campaign season.

The party chairman was gleeful about the success of his dinner and told the state committee: "More Democrats"

"If we can hold our momentum, we can have more Democrats running for the courthouse offices and the legislature this year than ever before in history."

A complete party slate for all offices in the state this year would involve at least 710 nominees. Normally the party falls nearly a third short of that. Historically the Republicans have controlled a big majority of the courthouse places and Democrats have found it so difficult to break in that they have had trouble in many districts in persuading loyalists to make sacrificial runs for the benefit of candidates for higher offices, such as congressman and governor.

The experience of the party in bringing off the Kennedy dinner successfully has apparently countered some of the doubts expressed by some party workers lately about the outlook in the competition with the Republicans in Wisconsin elections in the fall.

Unexpected Sales

After reciting some of the unexpected sales of $100 dinner tickets to non-Democrats, David Rabonovitz of Sheboygan, the party's national committeeman, said with a broad smile:

"We can rejoice in the fact that our future looks better."

State committee members were told that the party thus far this year has enrolled 18,000 dues-paying members, a better pace than in other years, and that the goal is 50,000.

Lucey matter-of-factly announced that he had decided against tape, he gave Taves $5,000 for outside speakers at the Democratic state convention in June, promise that Taves would name in order to provide publicity opportunities for speeches by principal state candidates, including

Atty. Gen. Reynolds for governor and Gov. Gaylord Nelson, for senator. Nelson has not yet announced that he is running for senator, but the party men regard that as an unimportant technicality.

Primaries Set In Three States On Tuesday

Hottest Election Is in Maryland as Bribe Offer Figures

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Primary elections will be held in Maryland, Pennsylvania and Nebraska Tuesday, ending campaigns that ranged from dull to blistering.

The hottest scrap has been in Maryland where the race for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination was enlivened by a tape recording alleging a $5,000 campaign contribution in return for some city judgeships.

Overtures of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's administration are present in the Pennsylvania and Nebraska elections.

In Nebraska, Fred Seaton, former Republican senator and secretary of the interior in the Eisenhower cabinet, appears sure to win the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

In Pennsylvania, Eisenhower's home state, Congressman William Scranton is running for the GOP gubernatorial nomination with Eisenhower's approval.

Oregon voters decide Friday on candidates for governor, senator and four House seats.

Seek Seat

Seven Democrats seek the Maryland gubernatorial nomination but the race has narrowed down to three men—Gov. J. Millard Taves, paving contractor George Mahoney of Baltimore and David Hume, Texas-born lawyer and son-in-law of financier Cyrus Eaton of Cleveland.

Mahoney has bid for governor or senator in every primary since 1950 and has lost every time, sometimes by razor thin margins. In the 1950 primary he polled the most popular votes, but former Gov. Preston J. Lane won the nomination on the basis of county unit votes, similar to electoral college votes.

Fuel was added to an already warm campaign when Baltimore political leader Jack Pollack played for newsmen a tape recording he allegedly made of a 1958 meeting with Taves, whom he supported. According to the tape, he gave Taves $5,000 for election expenses in return for a cratic state convention in June, promise that Taves would name in order to provide publicity opportunities for speeches by principal state candidates, including

Atty. Gen. Reynolds for governor and Gov. Gaylord Nelson, for senator. Nelson has not yet announced that he is running for senator, but the party men regard that as an unimportant technicality.

Split by the Atom

Relations Between France, U. S. Strained on Nuclear Power Issue

PARIS (AP)—France and the United States have been split by the atom. Relations between the two old allies have been skidding toward a historic low.

Outwardly the bonds of friendship are as strong as ever. But an undercurrent of reluctance, stubbornness or outright obstruction thwarts cooperation on almost any new project that is brought up for study.

President Charles de Gaulle is expected to talk about French-American relations Tuesday at one of his rare news conferences. Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville told the National Assembly's foreign affairs committee last week, "it is clear that there are differences and divergences." But he insisted the rift was not serious.

Heart of Quarrel

De Gaulle's determination to make France an atomic power is at the heart of the quarrel. The stern old general is convinced that France must have its own nuclear striking force to remain a first-rate power. He fears that if war should break out, the United States would be too busy with its own defense to worry about Europe.

U.S. policy, recently reaffirmed by President Kennedy, is against any proliferation of atomic weapons or any expansion in the number of atomic powers.

The United States can do nothing to stop France from building its own atomic bombs, but it is resolved to do nothing to help. That applies also to the planes and missiles to deliver the warheads.

The application of this policy has been galling to France. De Gaulle has been too proud and too cautious to ask for any American secrets that are guarded by the McMahon Act. But he would like to have material and information that only Britain now gets from the Americans.

France recently offered to buy from the United States a gaseous diffusion plant for manufacture of enriched uranium, blueprints for an atomic submarine, missile guidance systems and parts and propellants. The American answer was a flat no.

At one time American Officials were hesitant about approving the sale of Boeing jet tanker planes to France for refueling its Mirage IV jet fighter. Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara said recently, however, that France was free to buy as many tankers as it wants and the U.S. Air Force will give help on operating techniques.

Still No

The answer is still no, however, for such items as miniaturized electronic computers. The result is likely to be that France will develop its own for use in missile guidance systems and then be able to benefit commercially from the experience. The go-it-alone atomic development program already has given France a long lead on its European rivals on many specialized products.

France now is spending about $500 million a year to develop its nuclear strike force. This will double by 1965 when the bombs and planes are expected to be ready for service. France already has triggered five acknowledged nuclear explosions at its Sahara testing ground.

Some American officials have said that, with its limited budget, France can never hope for anything but a pea shooter atomic force, which might be useless. France recognizes that its effort is dwarfed by the programs in the United States and Russia. But it may still have the most destructive force on the Western European continent.

Kennedy, Republicans Say That U. S. Economy Not Going Fast Enough

GOP Leaders Disagree on Means Of Increasing Economic Growth

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has made any tax cut "utterly hopeless." They linked the spending rise to what they said were the President's "strenuous efforts" to gain more executive power.

But they showed in weekend statements that they disagree sharply on what to do about it. Kennedy, outlining his approach at a Democratic rally in Milwaukee, called for congressional action on several bills in his legislative program.

These include measures to provide jobs for young people, to finance medical care for the elderly by Social Security taxes, to aid higher educational institutions and to assist the farmers.

Test Measures

Kennedy defined these as test measures of the issue "Between those who feel we should stand still and those who feel we should move ahead."

Republican congressional leaders, on the other hand, denounced what they called Kennedy's "incredible zest" for more executive power and bigger government.

Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois and House Republican leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana chided Kennedy in a joint statement Sunday for failure to produce the rise in the economy they said he had promised in the 1960 presidential campaign.

No Tax Cut

Dirksen and Halleck contended that Kennedy's fiscal policies, which they said had led New Frontier economists to predict a $100-billion budget in a year or two, have slowed down rather than accelerated business recovery.

The two GOP leaders said that by increasing federal spending might become in the congressional campaign remains to be demonstrated. Republicans felt, however, they might offset the high personal popularity they concede the President is enjoying at this time.

Mother to Get Diploma Along With Her Son

DOVER, Tenn. (AP) — She's Margie to most of her high school classmates and teachers. But to one senior who will get his diploma with her next Friday, she's mom.

It was an especially joyful Mothers Day for Margie Page as she walked beside her son Cecil Sunday in the school's baccalaureate procession.

"I was determined I would start and finish with my son," she said. It was an ambition born of necessity. Her husband, S. S. Page, was disabled in 1951, and bread-winning chores fell to Margie, 38, mother of two and a grandmother.

She had completed the eighth grade as a young girl. When Cecil entered high school, she decided she might as well join him. Despite the fact most of Cecil's teachers were of her own generation.

REDLANDS, Calif. (AP) — The largest solid fuel rocket engine ever built by the United States is considered a success by officials.

It contains many features to be used in future moon rockets. The engine—called an applied research motor—burned out its capacity of 160,000 pounds of solid propellant in 13.0 seconds with a mighty roar of flames in a test Saturday.

Lockheed Propulsion Co., builder of the engine, said it was capable of producing 400,000 pounds of thrust.

Motorcycles Go to Church in England

LONDON (AP) — Dozens of teenagers took their motorcycles to church Sunday. A row of the shiny new vehicles stood in front of the altar at St. Mary of Eton, in the east end suburb of Hackney, for a service of thanksgiving and dedication.

The teen-agers, wearing black leather jackets and black boots and carrying crash helmets, knelt while the vicar prayed that they would "so ride that other people may be safe on the road."

It happened just before the army packed President Arturo Frondizi off to exile in the current, continuing crisis.

Philip was chatting with a high-ranking Argentine general. "General," he asked, "have you ever been in a war?" The general shrugged apologetically, explaining Argentina has had no war since the ore with Paraguay almost a century ago.

"Well," Philip is quoted as saying wryly, "I hope you're not going to start one now."

Idle Army
Argentina's army has had little to do—except for politicking—all those intervening years. Today it has found a war to fight. It considers itself at war against internal enemies. It sees those enemies as trying to reduce Argentina to chaos and then to pick up the pieces. The trouble is, the army itself also is having its own internal war.

Much of the confusion swirling by Gen. Enrique Rauch. It fears about the murky maze of Argentine politics stems from the fact and involvement with the civilian that the army is like no other government, and indeed, that army in the world. When Argentines say "the army," they mean the high command and senior military dictatorship has been officers. It seems less a military noted among some officers in establishment than a select club recent weeks.

The current crisis is only beginning. There is widespread fear among those who care—and they do not seem to include many among the public—that another military showdown may be near.

It isn't that Post-Crescent carrier boys lose their identity by becoming numerical designations, it's just that the routes of the newspaper's more than 500 carriers can be determined more easily by numbers.
A check on No. 142 reveals the carrier to be Dennis Nelson, 725 E. Grant St., whose fine service and sales ability recently has helped to increase his customer list by a solid eleven subscribers. These, and the rest of dom and some Latin American countries.

But by and large, Orientals are "not wanted" in most of the developed nations of the world.

Australia, for example, pursues an "all white" policy on immigration. While actively seeking immigrants from western Europe, it turns down Orientals.

In numbers of refugees, the Palestinian problem is as great as the problem in Hong Kong, but is under better control.

Nevertheless, about 1,000,000 of Smoky the Bear has ended in 1,200,000 Palestinian refugees re-death for a Marine.

The victim and a fellow Marine main in camps, largely in Jordan, Syria and Iraq and in the kidnapped the 5-100-5, 75-pound Gaza Strip in the United Arab figure Friday night from "Story-Republic."

gets. They number about 150,000.

There is also a problem with Togolese, a result of the creation of the new African state of Ghana. More than 10,000 refugees are involved.

In many cases, says the State Department's Sobotka, the essential problem refugees pose is not finding a place overseas for them.

"The problem, often," he says, "is to find local or international solutions to the political problems that created refugees."

"The objective often is to resettle them, close to home, or to move them to another part of the world."

U. S. Marines Readied For Thailand Landing

scheduled stay at his Virginia country place to hold the meeting with Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and other officials.

Under-secretary of State George Ball left the conference to appear on a television interview. He said that a peaceful settlement was possible if the Soviet Union would cooperate.

Ball reported the United States had asked Russia to get Communist-supported Pathet Lao troops pulled back to the cease-fire line from which they have been advancing in northwest Laos for about 10 days. Restoration of the year-old cease-fire would lead to revival of negotiations for a "government of national union" in Laos, and Ball made clear that is the immediate U.S. objective.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister

Vasily F. Kuznetsov is reported to have told British Ambassador Sir Frank Roberts in Moscow Saturday that the Kremlin still wanted such a government.

Ball said he was not certain by any means that the Soviet Union "called the shots" when the Pathet Lao forces launched their attack on the Laotian town of Nam Tha, which they took from demoralized Royal Laotian government troops. But he added:

"In any event I am certain that the Soviet Union has under its power means to control the situation."

Ball noted that under the 1954 Southeast Asia Treaty Organization pact the United States has certain defense obligations in the area. Thailand is a member of the pact, and treaty protections were drawn broadly enough to cover Laos and some other countries in the area that are not actual signers of the treaty.

The SEATO countries held military exercises in Thailand last month and afterward by agreement with the government at Bangkok a U.S. Army battle group remained in the country. The group, part of the 27th Infantry Regiment, numbers 1,000 men and is based in southeast Thailand.

It was reported Sunday to be still at its base 400 miles from the Thai-Laotian border along the Mekong River. Officials said it could be moved up into border defense positions and indicated that as a definite possibility. At the border its mission would be to stand with Thai defenders against Communist thrusts or infiltration.

The Marine landing forces could be deployed in similar manner and both the Marines and soldiers would then be ready for quick movement into Laos if ordered.

Refuses to Give Details

Ball declined to give out any information on military moves or even to describe the scope of Kennedy's alert order. He said military activities "will be disclosed at the appropriate time."

Military informants indicated that the 7th Fleet task force sent into the Gulf of Siam off the Thai coast presumably included the carrier Valley Forge, which serves as a floating base for a reinforced Marine battalion of about 2,000 men. This is a unit of the 3rd Marine Division based on Okinawa. The division strength may run up to 25,000 men, plus an air wing of 5,000.

Further development of the crisis, as assessed by U.S. officials depended primarily on two factors. One was what Russia would do about restoring the cease-fire. The other was how the fighting in Laos would develop.

Less Military Activity

Authorities here were by no means certain that Russia would agree to a pull back or Red forces even if it put a stop to the Pathet Lao advance and re-established the cease-fire. Meanwhile the Royal Laotian troops have shown themselves so far unable to stem the Red drive and there was no apparent hope here that they would yet be able to do so.

U. S. Lagging in Economic Growth,
Budget Chief Says

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—The United States is lagging behind the economic growth hoped for by President Kennedy, says U.S. Budget Director David E. Bell.

Bell, addressing the 65th annual meeting of the Associated Harvard Clubs Saturday, said he doubted the nation could reach full employment by the end of this year or the beginning of next.

Ran Stop Sign

Hass told police he slowed for the intersection but said he failed to stop for the stop sign. His car spun around and skidded about 90 feet coming to a halt southwest of the intersection, police said.

Neither car was badly damaged and the injuries were not believed to be serious at first. Rach was treated at the hospital for a bruise to the forehead and was released. Kevin Rach, 3, suffered a broken hip but his brother and Hass escaped unhurt.

Neither car was equipped with seat belts.

Third Calumet Death

Mrs. Rach was the former Phil-dred Salm. She was born in Chicago, went to school and married there.

She is survived by her widow, er, six sons, her parents, one brother and four sisters.

The fatality was Calumet Coun-ty's third of the year compared with seven at this time last year. The county had gone 100 days without a fatal accident.

William J. Weso was thrown 68 feet after he was struck by a car whose driver is still unknown. Shawano County police said. Weso was walking west on State 26 about 1 1/2 miles west of Shawano about 3:10 a. m. Sunday when he was run down.

Glen M. Pilgrim, Wausau, saw the body lying in the roadway as he drove west around a curve of State 29, shortly after Weso was hit, but could not stop in time and drove over the body. Pilgrim stopped and called Shawano Coun-sity police.

Died Immediately

Deputy Coroner Louis Hoeffs said Weso died immediately after the first impact.

Shawano County police are look-ing for the hit and run driver. They said they found a large por-tion of the hit and run driver's

Milk Production Lessons

The bulletin Wisconsin Dairying, published by the state and federal crop reporting service, contains an oblique lesson in the failures of the national dairy program in its current edition.

It reports that the dairy herds of the state produced almost three billions of pounds of milk during the first two months of this year, with a new record in production per cow established during that period that usually shows some depressing effects of severe winter weather.

Farm critics of the dairy price support program have often maintained that it is ineffectual because when the price is dropped the farmer is inclined to increase his effort to produce, as a means of making up the lost income. The evidence of these winter production figures, it would seem, bears out the contention. Precisely during this period the farmers were aware of the prospect for a substantial drop in the level of federal price supports, which became a reality late in March with the decision of Agriculture Secretary Freeman.

Mr. Freeman says he has no alternative under the law. Some Wisconsin spokesmen, including several well-informed members of the house of representatives, dispute that argument and cite Mr. Freeman's own political stump speeches on the subject when a Republican. Mr. Benson, held the agricultural portfolio in the cabinet.

Our own legal competence is not sufficient to render a responsible judgment of the meanings of these statutory intricacies. But what does appear more and more apparent, to the naked eye of most observers, is that the idea of government purchasing at announced price levels as a means of strengthening market prices is a failure. It has accumulated shamefully high and costly surpluses. It has encouraged exploitation of our soil reserves beyond our national needs. It has brought on enormous storage liabilities for the taxpayer, as well as unnecessary costs in the actual purchases.

What the solution of the farm price squeeze may be has eluded our best economists, and so we acknowledge no embarrassment in failing to have our own pet solution. Yet it would seem that two of the alternatives commonly advanced are preferable, if only because they promise results at lesser costs. One of them would be to control production, through a quota system for the dairymen resembling that already accepted by non-perishable commodity producers. But it seems clear that the farmer doesn't want quotas. It also seems clear that any governmental system telling the farmer how many cows he can keep or how much pasture he may use would make a mockery out of the idea of an independent or free agriculture. That leaves the idea of more land reserves, more withdrawal of feed lands from production. This will be costly. But almost anything seems better than the absurdities of the present price-backing mechanism. At the least, we won't be mining precious soil beyond our capacity to use the harvest.

Atomic Power Is Making Gains

While the big bomb holds the center of the stage in the advancing atomic age, it is interesting to note that some important advances in the use of atomic energy for peaceful purposes are being made.

Dr. John R. Dunning who was a research worker on the Manhattan project which developed the atomic bomb in World War II is now predicting that new power plants in the state of New York will be atomic in increasing proportions in the future.

Dr. Dunning who is dean of the school of engineering at Columbia University and chairman of the nuclear program of the Empire State Atomic Development Associates, Inc., was speaking for the latter organization. The development group is a non-profit organization established by seven major power companies in the state. Dr. Dunning pointed out that the program in New York was possible because the St. Lawrence and Niagara hydro-electric power project had provided a surplus of power which gave the New York group time to concentrate on developing cost reductions in atomic power. The development of atomic energy is expected to progress quite rapidly in New York because that state is a "middle cost fuel state" in terms of coal, oil and natural gas. He predicted it would be a decade or more before atomic plants could compete in the low cost area. He said atomic power for the present will supplement and not supplant existing power sources. He pointed out that the Empire State Development Associates is an example of private industries banding together to lead in developing these advances. He said the work of the development group was to prevent lagging so as to become vulnerable for government intervention.

Many other public utilities including the Wisconsin Michigan Power Company in Appleton have associated together to develop atomic plants for the production of electrical energy. They are largely experimental and intended for use in the days ahead when the cost of conventional fuels will have risen or when, through experiment, the cost of producing electrical energy with atomic power will have been reduced.

Red 'Revenocers'

The Russian Communists, plagued by all sorts of deviationist tricks, have found a new one invented or at least developed by Kentucky mountaineers a couple of decades ago. A Soviet judge has waxed wrath about the "social" evils of home-brew.

The judge claims that lax law enforcement and not enough laws in the first place have let the situation reach alarming heights. One region, he says, had more than 4,000 charges of home-brewing in one year. A group of collective farmers enthusiastically allocated a ton and a half of grain for the purpose of illegal home-brewing. Officials of a large hospital conspired in a widespread distillation operation.

Russians are forbidden from home-brewing their beloved vodka from potatoes, grapes, mulberry leaves or bread. They aren't supposed to make chachah, an intriguingly named product, from the remnants of wine leaves, or araki from rice and palm juice. Beer, called braga, can't be made from bread or grain and wine must be kept under a 12½ per cent alcoholic level.

Seeking New Wood Products

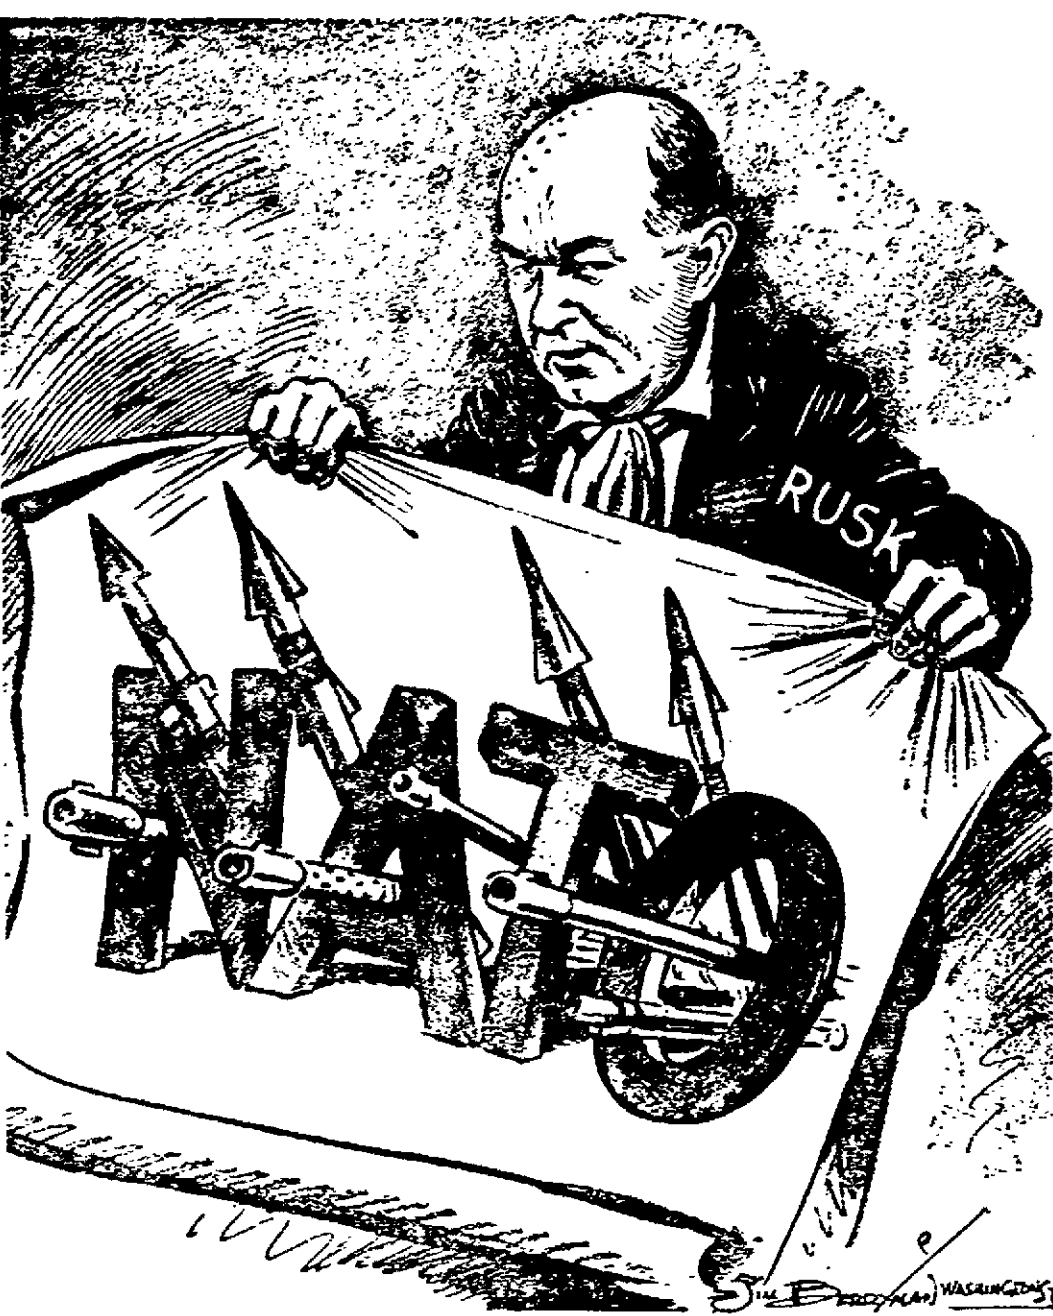

Recently 25 of the nation's outstanding wood technologists spent two days at the University of Michigan conferring with university technologists as a first step in the development of a wood-products research program to be supported initially by Institute of Science and Technology grants.

The discussions were of special interest to Michigan because most of Michigan's wood products are not of lumber quality. There are huge tracts of aspen in the Upper Peninsula, most of which is used for pulp making. Prof. Alan Marra says that aspen and other low grade timber would be much more valuable if particles from it could be pressed into a good grade board for construction uses. "Up until now," he said, "there has been no systematic, scientific approach to the problem of how to make particle board that will stand up under a great variety of weather conditions. Until we can produce efficiently a stable particle board, it will have only limited uses in construction."

The professor thinks, however, that with a well-conducted research program to determine why the particle board deteriorates when exposed to weather and how to correct the manufacturing processes it would be possible to produce a board that in some respects would be better and cheaper than plywood used for building exteriors.

He believes, in fact, that such a process would make it possible to fabricate complete wood products such as doors, frames and enclosures directly from wood flakes thus bypassing many costly hand operations.

The scientists have in the wood itself all of the ingredients for producing such a board. Now that they have started on the program it may be expected that within a reasonable time they will produce a board from aspen flakes stronger than an oak plank although much thinner, lighter and easier to work. Such are the rewards of research.

Warning to June Graduates: Walk Cautiously If to Right

BY MORRIE RYSKIND

June isn't far away and, from Maine to Hawaii, college presidents are beginning to work on the speeches they will deliver to the graduating classes before handing out the diplomas.

Ryskind

The actual texts will vary, since each oration must pay some attention to peculiarly local matters. But the basic theme will be the same. The outgoing seniors will be warned against the besetting sin of our time: conformity. It will be impressed upon them that the world needs as never before men who will refuse to run with the pack and insist on thinking for themselves. And names like Socrates and Galileo will be cited as heroes to emulate.

The fact that this glowing tribute to rugged individualism is usually followed by the awarding of honorary degrees to a dozen celebrities whose chief claim to fame is that they promulgate the doctrine that the state can think better for us than we can ever hope to do so. I insist, negate the fundamental soundness of the precepts laid down.

So walk left or right—or even dead center—as conscience directs you, and God speed you, say I. But, in all fairness, you should be cautioned that the right is a perilous path, where one misstep may bring utter disaster. Even if you tread cautiously, you will receive far fewer invitations than the lads who take the other roads, and your chance for that honorary degree is almost nil.

Take Robert Welch, for example. In a private memorandum—not a book, as is charged: a book is something printed and offered to the general public—to a group of conservatives, he blew his top over the extent of Communist gains and went so far as to call Ike and some of his associates members of the conspiracy.

I was one of the recipients, and I knew at least a half-dozen of the others. All of us, widely scattered, wrote him—without consultation—that his conclusions about Ike et al. werearrant nonsense and that he would destroy himself and inflict irreparable damage on the honest conservative cause if he ever let loose publicly with such charges. So far as I know, he never has—and that should have ended the matter.

Later he organized—and got a pretty solid set of citizens to join—the John Birch Society, less than 1 per cent of whose members, it is my educated guess, had ever heard of the letter. Had the society been formed around the famous memorandum, I doubt he could have recruited more than a dozen. The activities of the group have been, in the main, limited to an extensive campaign of letter writing to Congressmen.

Some of the projects seem sound and others I regard as a silly waste of time. But they must have been effective, for suddenly the screaming began. Using the "guilt by association" theory, which they denounce when you and I suspect a fellow who takes the 5th Amendment and has attended Communist meetings five or six days a week, the liberal cohorts have fallen on the Birchers' hip and thigh.

Today, to even admit you know Welch is to be beyond the pale. And no important crime—rape, arson or murder—occurs but that two things happen immediately: some liberal hints that the Birch Society was responsible and the police arrest Mickey Cohen. Sometimes I'm convinced that Mickey is a secret member of the society.

But now take Linus Pauling. The famous professor's conscience leads him to the conclusion that it is far better to be Red than dead. It is clear that he is not a party member, but he has nevertheless managed to attend many so-called conferences staged by the boys—perhaps for the FBI.

Publicly—and I don't mean in a private letter—he has said that Mr. Kennedy would go down in history as "our most immoral President" because, at long last, JFK ordered resumption of our nuclear testing.

That has not barred him from polite society. He went to Russia—after Nikita had unilaterally broken the moratorium—and was feted and honored there. And said some nice things about the boys, which they quoted widely in their magazines.

But he's back now, and was busy picketing the White House. He rested most of Sunday so he could attend the President's dinner that evening.

And, so far at least, Ike hasn't had the decency to invite Bob Welch or Mickey Cohen over for even a hamburger.

Facts About Gov. Harvey's Death

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Motor for May 15, 1862.

Excerpts from funeral orations honoring Gov. Louis P. Harvey, who drowned April 19 in the Tennessee River while investigating conditions of Wisconsin soldiers at Pittsburgh Landing, Tenn., show why the governor was in Tennessee and how the fatal accident occurred.

It was on the 19th of April, 1862, that the first Martyrs to American Liberty voluntarily enriched the soil of Lexington and died in defense of the principles which were subsequently embodied in the Declaration of Independence. It was on the 19th of April, 1861, that some of the descendants of those honored heroes fell in the city of Baltimore, the first victims of this unholy rebellion, while on their way to defend the Capital of the West Government the sun ever shone upon.

It is a remarkable coincidence that it was on the anniversary of those memorable days of Louis P. Harvey, our much-loved Governor, while on an errand of mercy and love, fell a victim to this unholy war.

Such a battle as had never been known upon this continent had been fought at Pittsburgh Landing, Tenn., Battle of Shiloh. Hundreds of Wisconsin's bravest sons had there closed their eyes in mortal conflict with the enemy. Hundreds more, wounded and bleeding, were suffering untold distress as the price of victory. To minister to their wants, and alleviate their suffering, Governor Harvey hastened to the scene of action. While engaged in this noble mission, an inscrutable but All-Wise Providence removed him from earth forever.

Governor Harvey had visited that dreadful spot in obedience to the instincts of a noble nature. He had ministered to the wants of the distressed and made glad many bleeding sons of Wisconsin.

A mysterious fatal step from the boat that was to bear him homeward, plunged him beneath the turbid waters of the Tennessee. Speech by the Hon. A. B. Jackson at Menasha, May 1, 1862.

At Savannah, Tenn., accompanied by his suite, he (Gov. Harvey) was on the point of exchanging positions from one part of the boat to another, when by a single misstep, he fell into the rapid, swollen stream and was instantly lost to view in its turbid waters.

Many were ready to lend a helping hand, some jumping overboard for that purpose, but none could effectually succor him. With an instinct common to our human nature, the stifled cry for help was prompted as the surging stream bore him onward

True Conservation Has No Political Standing

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — In an era that has seen the development of powerful lobbies representing virtually every special interest in the community, it is a strange fact of Wisconsin political life that the great mass of persons interested in the outdoors has not yet evolved into a conscious or identifiable lobby.

The mystery was mentioned recently by Gov. Gaylord Nelson, a politician who has made more direct appeals to the outdoors conservation interest than any other public figure of his time in Wisconsin, at the convention of the Izaak Walton League a week ago.

It was probably a good place to make the point. The League is an ancient and honorable voice in constructive conservation advocacy. But its own small size and slender resources serve to prove the point that the governor was making, and to emphasize the curious lack of an organized special interest group in this area.

THE POTENTIAL POWER

Once formed into an articulate and purposeful organization, the hundreds of local rod and gun clubs, boat clubs, nature clubs and many other hobby organizations could become one of the most potent forces in legislative policies or policies generally.

They could rank with the lawyers, the doctors, the teachers, the county boards, possibly even the big labor organizations and business federations in impressing their will and their wishes upon the legislature and upon the political parties.

Even without the semblance of a state-wide front, the conservation interest is one of the most potent in political life in Wisconsin, as the governor has amply shown by putting through a reluctant and suspicious legislature the most dramatic conservation program extension that any leader has achieved in 30 years.

The reasons for this default are obscure. It may be that this strange lack in a society otherwise so meticulously organized for political expression represents nothing more than the failure of leadership to evolve. It may be that public opinion has been content with the actions and the legislation in this broad and popular field that have resulted from the initiative of the politicians themselves, without prodding from the galleries. It may be that there is too much fragmentation in this enormous—in numerical terms—group, that the boaters and the duck hunters and the trout lovers and the partridge hunters are essentially separate interests.

WHY?

Yet none of these quite satisfies, for as Nelson so aptly told the Waltonians, today almost everybody is a "conservationist," at least by his own conception.

"He may be a bird watcher, a hunter, a lover of scenic beauty, or just somebody looking at one plant outside his window. Political implementation is the only way to solve the problem. You have the broadest political appeal in America and it's time to use it," Nelson remarked.

This appeal, if anything, will become deeper and more powerful as each passing year testifies to the more intense public interest in the outdoors and especially in Wisconsin with its multiplicity of natural resources and increasing pressures of use upon them.

Implicit in the governor's confession of mystification about the lack of political expression of the conservation interest and impulse is the absence of the best men in the state political system in the service of the conservation cause. Top legislators almost to a man gravitate to other fields of interest. For the most part the conservation voices in politics have been the lesser men, and too often, the shallow and grandstanding men who are following instinct rather than intellectual conviction.

and manly swept him under; yet no finite arm could save him. Death claimed his victim. Speech by President R. Z. Mason, president of Lawrence University, May 1, 1862, in Appleton.

(A later news release) Gov. Harvey's body was recovered about 60 miles below Pittsburgh Landing. It was first discovered by some lads who informed a negro woman, who drew the body out of the water and, after rifling the pockets of $300, watch and pencil, buried it. The facts coming to the knowledge of Mr. Singletree of Pittsburgh Landing, he caused the body to be exhumed and by dint of threats and mingled promises, obtained the valuables. These fully established the identity and he sent papers and valuables with the body to the Major of the 16th Wisconsin Regiment. The body arrived at Cairo, Ill., and was received by Perry H. Smith of Appleton and the governor's brother, J. S. Harvey of Chicago, both of whom left for Chicago with the remains.

There Gov. Salmon and suite were waiting to accompany the remains to Madison, where the funeral took place.

Cheaper Sewing Machines

Low-Cost Foreign Labor Hurting U. S.

BY ED KANDLIK
Chicago Daily News Service

CHICAGO — Competition from industrial sewing machines is not low-cost foreign labor has put a ceiling on jobs at Union Special Machine Co. here.

Expansion is being directed to machines that are adapted into 600 variations for special uses. An industrial sewing machine is not as easily mass produced as home sewing machines. This means that more man-hours of labor must go into the product.

In May, 1960, the Interdepartmental Trade Agreements Organization, which is a body representing the principal U.S. government departments, such as State, Commerce and Labor, put textile machinery, including sewing machines, on a list for which the United States intended to negotiate tariff concessions.

W. S. North, president of Union Special Machine Co., then filed a suit with the U.S. Tariff Commission.

The industrial sewing machine is quite different from a home sewing machine. It sells for $210 million to $2,500 and serves a different market — factories that use the machine to make shirts, sew bags, States not to cut tariffs further but to take steps to get Japan, Italy and the United Kingdom and Brazil.

Union Special Machine makes the about 30 basic models of sewing which are both buyers and producers of industrial sewing machines, to cut their tariffs on such machines and to relax their foreign exchange regulations that govern imports of sewing machines.

North warned that union can only ship to "capital short" countries by producing in low labor cost areas. Because of this it had recently doubled the size of its German plant. The company is also faced with the need for at least three plants around the world during the next five or 10 years to meet competition, he said.

Currently the U.S. tariff on imports of industrial sewing machines is 10 per cent. This is no effective bar to imports. Union makes the units in Stuttgart, Germany, and knows it could jump this tariff barrier readily, if it wished. Competitors are shipping in such machines.

Japanese Competition

In November, 1960, North outlined the situation to employees in the company's newsletter. He discussed competition from Japan and disclosed that union had contracted with the Kondo Sewing Machine Co. and the Yamato Sewing Machine Co. to make certain of its machines and parts. At the same time Union acquired per cent interest in the two Japanese companies.

North pointed out that Japanese firms were then making copies of Union's machines and that patent protection on many models had run out. Some of the copies were getting to be just about as good as the originals.

He said that with their low labor rates the Japanese were making a lockstitch hook that they were selling in the United States for $3.75 compared with Union's price of about $15.

2nd Newsletter

In January, 1962, North sent employees another newsletter discussing plans to extend manufacturing either in Germany or Northern Ireland.

Formation of the European Economic Community and the European Free Trade Area means that within a few years most European and Scandinavian countries will have no tariff duties on shipments among themselves but they all will have duties against countries outside the group, he wrote. This will give an advantage to competitors in Germany, Italy and Great Britain, he said.

Fringe Benefits

North listed labor rates plus reduced here and sustained in areas where costs were lower.

pean countries and Japan ranging from 55 cents to $1.08 an hour and asked the employee to compare it with what he was getting. Until a few years ago the company was able to export to Europe because its machines were faster, more dependable and had a longer life, he said, but this advantage is disappearing as the quality of foreign-made products improves.

He expressed confidence that continued growth of the company's sales in the United States and Canada, aided by new machines being developed, would make up for any loss of exports from the two U.S. plants and permit continuance of employment at Chicago and Huntley at previous levels.

In the event of a recession, however, this would not hold true. Employment would probably be reduced here and sustained in areas where costs were lower.

Nason on Education

BY LESLIE J. NASON, E.D.D.
University, Southern California
Professor of Education

When your small son reaches the "I'm going to be a fireman" stage, go right along with him. Say, "That's fine, be the best fireman in town."

In his early strivings and successes as well as those in later years, he needs your help and support.

Goals need not be permanent. But the habit of setting goals is important. Students with goals in mind are most successful.

You can encourage your child to be goal minded by accepting the normal ambitions he has at various ages. That will help form the habit of setting goals and working towards them.

My studies of the scholastic achievements of superior high school students show that the most successful of them have selected fairly precise educational goals. Gifted and superior children usually select goals early—many into actual pressure. For them, however, grades were lower and adjustment to both school and society were lower.

Talk It Over

Are you sure your son or daughter knows how you feel about his objectives? It's what he thinks that you feel that is important. When children don't know how their parents feel, there has been a breakdown in communications. What they need to do is sit down and talk things over. After such a talk, I have seen both parent and student happily surprised to find they were in agreement on goals all the time.

Parents are the key people, in other words, when it comes to helping students settle on their goals. It's parental approval and support that counts.

Literal Styles Translated

Members of the St. Paul Ladies Aid took their fashions literally for the styleshow presented at the 23rd annual mother-daughter banquet at 6 p.m. Thursday at the school auditorium.

A nylon drip-dry can-can dress was interpreted in an outfit made of nylon stockings with cans hanging at the hem. The matching stocking hat had a crown of nylon stockings and a stuffed stocking perched on the top.

A box jacket was made from a cardboard box with game dart pockets. The model had her hair done in a bun style — hamburger buns, that is. Another model chose a print dress made from newspapers and topped her ensemble with a picture frame hat.

Sports attire was illustrated with a car coat, decorated with toy cars. The model wore a pillbox hat; the hat brim lined with pill boxes. Her ensemble was complete with a pigskin bag — a football.

Mrs. Howard Radtke and Mrs. James Prink were co-chairmen of the dinner. Mrs. Melvin Schmidt was chairman of the kitchen committee.

Mmes. Maynard Prue, R. L. Radtke, Wilbert Rahm-low, Harvey Rath, Fred Rehfeldt, Herman Rehler, Fred Reichel, William Reichel, Adolph Risse, Robert Roth, Timothy Sauer, Chester Schroeder, Nolan Schucknecht, Ervin Schultz, Ruben Schulz, Lyle Schwalbach, Walter Seidel, Harold Sievert, Harold Springstroh, Elsie Stach, Linda Stach, and Miss Agnes Sauer served on the committee.

It May Look Strange, but the outfits worn by the St. Paul Ladies Aid can be readily identified by their fashion terms. Above left, Mrs. Harold Springstroh wears a box jacket. Her hair is done in a bun style. Mrs. Fred Rehfeldt's dress has a jeweled bodice and toy train. Her hat is a straw topper. Mrs. Ruben Schulz models a nylon drip-dry ensemble with marshmallow gloves and Mrs. Chester Schroeder a balloon style dress with basket weave pockets. At right, Mrs. Maynard Prue, wearing a sack dress, admires Mrs. Tim Sauer's picture frame hat. Mrs. Sauer's print dress is made of newspaper. Mrs. Wilbert Rahm-low is wearing a charcoat, pillbox hat and carrying a pig-skin bag.

Joyous Athens Wedding Thrills Two Countries

ATHENS (AP) — Prince Juan Carlos of Spain and Princess Sophia of Greece were married to-

The only sour note was a boycott of the wedding by the pro-Communist Pan Democratic Agrarian Front and the Center Union, the two major opposition political parties, who have been demanding that King Paul, the Premier Constantine Caramanlis.

It was the most brilliant wedding Athens had seen since So-figures. Just pity the brave census taker who discovered that today's hand or something very close to it was misplayed 159 times in one day in northern Wyoming.

Princess Sophie arrived at the church right on time. She was escorted by eight bridesmaids, their eight escorts and four witnesses.

You can see what happened West opened the singleton diamond, and South finessed. Silly, wasn't it? What could they have been thinking about in Wyoming?

That foolish first-trick finesse lost to the king of diamonds, and back came the eight of diamonds for West to ruff. This was sure to defeat the contract, since declarer still had to lose two aces.

In some cases, West correctly read the eight of diamonds as calling for a heart return. If West led a heart at the third trick, East took the ace and led another diamond for West to ruff. As a result, South was down two.

No Finesse Needed

In the calm of our study we can easily see that no finesse was needed. Declarer should pick up dummy's ace of diamonds and draw trumps immediately. Then South can concede a dia-

Parents Tell Engagement Of Daughter

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schroeder, route 1, Appleton, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Joan, to Joseph Verhasselt, son of Isidor Verhasselt, route 2, Kaukauna.

Miss Schroeder was graduated from Fox Valley Lutheran High School and is employed at Scolding Locks, Appleton. Her fiancé attended Kaukauna High School and is also employed at Scolding Locks.

A July 21 wedding is planned.

Auxiliary Selects Officers

Mrs. David Specht was named president of the Kaukauna American Legion Auxiliary at a recent meeting of the unit.

Other officers named were Mrs. Toiva Keinonen, first vice president; Mrs. George Greenwood Jr., second vice president and Miss Margaret Courtney, treasurer. Delegates to the county council will be Mrs. Sherman Rogers and Mrs. Ellen Streich with Mrs. Joseph Promer and Mrs. Arthur Kromer Jr. as alternates.

Plans were made for a mother-daughter covered dish party to be held Thursday at the new clubhouse. Mrs. Robert Specht and Mrs. Edmund Kline will have charge of the affair.

Installation of officers will be held at a joint meeting with the Legion on June 5. Mrs. Steve Andrejeski will be kitchen chairman assisted by Mrs. Fred Mason, Mrs. Edmund Kline and Mrs. Jerome Huss. Working on decorations will be Mrs. Arthur Frazer and Mrs. Dick Peters. Mrs. Mason will prepare corsages for dignitaries.

Marriage Promises Exchanged

Miss Sheila Ann Herning, 1033 E. Maes Ave., Kimberly, and Thomas M. Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Anderson, 309 S. Taylor St., Little Chute, were united in marriage at 9 a.m. Saturday at St. John's Catholic Church, Little Chute.

The Rev. LeRoy Hogan performed the double ring ceremony and nuptial high mass. Peter Wilkenberg escorted the bride to the altar.

Miss Ann Anderson, Kaukauna, a cousin of the bridegroom, attended as maid of honor. Miss Patricia Glouemans, Little Chute, was bridesmaid.

The bridegroom's brother, Kenneth J. Anderson, Kaukauna, served as best man. Groomsman was Jerome Van Hooft, Freedom.

Jerome Frank, Little Chute, a cousin of the bridegroom, and Bernard Van Roy, Kimberly, shared ushering duties.

A dinner and reception were held at the May-Nor Restaurant, Little Chute.

The bride was graduated from St. John's High School. Her husband served for six years in the Army and is employed at Thilmany Pulp and Paper Co., Kaukauna.

After a honeymoon to western Wisconsin, Mr. and Mrs. Anderson will live at 309 S. Taylor St., Little Chute.

Mrs. Kay Gable, widow of former film star Clark Gable, arrives at a recent Hollywood cocktail party with Robert W. Prescott, president of Flying Tiger Airlines, her frequent escort in recent weeks. A new hair-do produces a marked change in her appearance.

Your Problems

Woman Questions Safety of Church When Doctor Absent

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: During church services Sunday a member of the congregation fainted. The minister kept right on with his sermon as if nothing had happened.

It's not possible that our pastor was unaware of the incident because there was a great deal of confusion. Several people vacated their places in the pew to make room for the woman to lie down. Finally an usher asked the minister to inquire if a doctor was present.

Well, Ann, the church was filled, but there was not even one doctor in the crowd. When the woman came to she was helped to her feet and taken out into the fresh air.

Landers

This got me to thinking. Is church a safe place to go when a person has a heart condition as I do? Maybe I'd be better off at the country club, playing golf. That's where all the doctors are.

And what sort of minister ignores a stricken person and keeps right on talking? The poor soul could have died right then and there in the house of God and no notice would have been taken. Some members of the congregation said, "The show must go on," but I don't think a church is a theatre. Your opinion? — No Doctor in the House

Dear No: You're wrong on both counts. The minister should continue with his sermon if a parishioner faints. It's a pretty common occurrence and without question he would have asked for a doctor when it became obvious one was needed.

I agree it seems a trifle odd that there was not a single doctor present. In the absence of the facts, however, let's be charitable and assume they

I were all up late Saturday — serving humanity.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm in a spot. Can you help? A close friend of mine returned from a trip to South America. She sent a postcard from Buenos Aires to say she had just purchased a "most exciting gift" for me. I could scarcely wait till she came home.

Well, yesterday she brought over the "exciting gift." It almost scared me to death. It's an alligator hand bag with the reptile's head, teeth, feet, toenails — everything. It looks alive and it's hideous.

Worse still, she bought one for herself and we go to the same parties and club meetings. One

Today's Etiquette

BY LOUISE DAVIS

I am in the process of planning my wedding and reception. Would it be proper to have a thank-you verse printed on the paper napkins so that I wouldn't have to mail out notes or cards for the gifts that we receive?

Louise Davis Answers:

No. A paper napkin containing a printed thank-you verse is worse than nothing. Perish the thought for it would advertise bad manners and lack of gratitude. I am wondering what you intended to do about thank-yous to those people who sent gifts but were unable to be present. Surely you wouldn't plan to mail them napkins! As soon as your gifts arrive, write friendly, personal notes to each giver and mention the specific gift. I suggest that you include a message from your bridegroom that "Jack is tickled pink too with your lovely and useful piece of crystal and joins me in sending sincerest thanks."

FOLDING INVITATION

I always thought that a wedding invitation should be folded with the engraving on the outside and that the tissue is placed inside. We have lately received two from both coasts of the U.S. with the engraving on the inside. Is this now considered correct?

Louise Davis Answers:

No. The engraved wording should be on the outside. Using the tissue is optional. It is placed on top of the engraving and its purpose is to keep the ink from smudging, but I have never known of one to smear and often recommend that it be discarded.

Homemakers Hold Joint Installation

Installation of officers was held at the annual joint dinner meeting of the Afternoon and Evening Kaukauna Homemaker's Clubs Wednesday at Van Abel's Restaurant, Hollandtown.

Mrs. Ted Van Dyke was installing officer. Assuming duties for the afternoon unit were Mrs. Dan Janssen, president; Mrs. Jerome Van Dinter, vice president; Mrs. Adrian McGrath, secretary, and Mrs. J. J. Martens Jr., treasurer.

The Evening club will be headed by Mrs. Harold Feller, president; Mrs. Robert Mather, vice president; Mrs. Dan Roberts, secretary, and Mrs. Robert Johnson, treasurer. The triple trio from Kaukauna High School pre-sented a program.

Prof. Stephen Darling, Lawrence College, spoke on the chemical content and value of cosmetics. Mrs. Linus Schaefer introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Martin Janssen and Mrs. William Mittelstaed had charge of dinner arrangements.

Mrs. John Feldkamp and Mrs. Stuart Black, out-going presidents, spoke briefly. Mrs. James McFadden, Homemaker Club adviser, was presented a gift.

Tommie Aaron, Menke Benched by Tebbetts

NEW YORK (AP)—Milwaukee fault with the pitching. Manager Birdie Tebbetts says he "read the riot act" to his Braves second game." he said. They didn't throw a curve to (Elio) Chacon all day, and he comes up with five hits and two walks in seven times at bat."

The manager expressed disappointment with the lack of punch with men on bases and he benched Denis Menke, a rookie who had been used at third in the place of ailing Eddie Matherne.

"I really chewed 'em out, every one of them," Tebbetts said, "and to a team like the Mets." "The Braves dropped the first game Saturday to New York, 3-2, after losing a doubleheader to the new entry in the National League."

"I still think Menke will hit big league pitching," Tebbetts said, "but he may need a little more shallow right field bleachers to score two runs in the last half of time to get adjusted. Tommie was the ninth inning. He got the blow curls the bat around his neck before Spahn after two were out. The fore he swings and we are going to the stands, also in the ninth youngsters we brought up. They have to have a period of adjustment."

Tebbetts said he had to find justment."

Young GOPs Won't Criticize Party 'Liberals'

Resolution Hitting Faction Rejected By 787-376 Vote

SHEBOYGAN (AP)—Wisconsin Young Republicans have refused to go on record criticizing ultra-liberal elements within the party. Delegates to the annual Wisconsin Young GOP convention turned down by a 787-376 vote Sunday a resolution which stated that ultra-liberals "blur the distinguishing factors between the two major political philosophies in the U.S."

Assemblyman William Steiger of Oshkosh warned the delegates that passage of the resolution would be a disastrous mistake. "It was offered by Paul W. Weyrich of Racine. The resolution also called for liberal Republicans to 'repudiate their close association with the ideology of the opposition party.' Weyrich said one of the persons aimed at in the resolution was Sen. Alexander Wiley, R-Wis.

Mary Freiburger, 19, of Appleton, a student at Alverno College in Milwaukee, was chosen Miss Wisconsin GOP.

District chairmen and vice chairmen, respectively, elected were:

6th—Joseph Hames of Waubesa and Joan Perrizo of Fond du Lac. 7th—Elroy H. Grell of Wausau and Gary Emmel of Shawano. 8th—Ronald Neerdaels of De Pere and Mildred Martin of Crandon.

Soldier, 19, Jailed on 3 Traffic Counts

A 19-year-old soldier on leave from his Army post in Texas was held in Outagamie County jail until 4 p. m. today on $1,000 bond after he admitted three traffic offenses.

John G. Danke, Adella Beach, Neenah, pleaded guilty to driving after his driver's license was revoked, falsifying an arrest report and operating his car in a negligent manner. Danke has a record of nine previous traffic convictions.

Danke was arrested about 9:20 p. m. Sunday on U. S. 41 in the Town of Grand Chute. A pickup truck operated by Danke side-swiped an Outagamie County patrol car driven by William Janssen, police said. Janssen pursued Danke's vehicle and when the driver was stopped, he produced a driver's license which was not his own, police said.

County Court, Branch 2, Judge Gustave Keller ordered Danke to appear in court this afternoon with local Army officials. He said he wanted the Army to know how Danke conducted himself while he was on leave.

UW Hall Named For Relative of Area Residents

Several Fox Cities area residents were among relatives of Susan Burdick Davis, dean of freshmen women at the University of Wisconsin from 1925 to 1941, who attended the dedication of a hall in her name in Madison Sunday.

The UW's second low rental cooperative hall for women was named in honor of the former dean. Relatives attending the ceremony included Martin Werner, grand-nephew of Susan Davis, and Mrs. Werner, Appleton; Mrs. Arthur Werner, nephew who died in Appleton in 1958; Victor Werner, nephew, a New York attorney; Mrs. Jesse Davis, DePere, widow of M. E. Davis, brother of Susan Davis, and Morton E. Davis, nephew, DePere.

Daughter of Ann Landers Wed Sunday

CHICAGO (AP)—Margo Lederer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jules Lederer, formerly of Eau Claire, Wis., and John Bennett Coleman of Boston were married Sunday in a Chicago hotel.

Mrs. Lederer is known as Ann Landers and is a syndicated advice columnist. Both she and Lederer were active in community affairs before leaving Wisconsin several years ago. She also was active in Democratic politics.

Two rabbis—Dr. Julian Feibelman of New Orleans and Dr. Julian Binstock of Chicago—performed the ceremony.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred M. Coleman of Boston.

A dinner for 300 guests was given by the bride's parents after the ceremonies. Guests included Sen. and Mrs. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, and the Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, president of the University of Notre Dame.

Honor Band 'Notable'

Band Concert Demonstrates Excellence of Music Program

BY JOSEPH HENRY

Sunday evening 132 young musicians, pupils at St. Joseph Grade School, demonstrated the existence and functioning of an excellent program in instrumental music in a spring band concert under the outstanding direction of Francis N. Scholtz.

Progressive stages of this program were represented by the Second Band, the First Band and the notable Honor Band. The large audience was treated not only to fine playing by the Honor Band but also to a vivid example of the training efforts necessary to prepare the young players for this advanced ensemble, which could be compared favorably to the similar efforts in many larger communities and school systems.

Solid musical principles underlie Scholtz's work with these young people. Development of the awareness of intonation, precise rhythm, good tone and a sense of ensemble participation were all evident, plus a less tangible but equally important quality, esprit de corps.

The Second Band, made up of the youngest players, performed two marches and a waltz.

More Sophisticated The First Band, which showed more sophistication, performing four works including a rather difficult setting of three songs of colonial America by Leroy Jackson and a lovely miniature called "Little Prelude" by Finlayson, which demonstrated particularly the good intonation of the low brasses.

The playing of the honor band, far more mature than the First

Band, was marked by blending and flexibility often not found among high school bands. Opportunity to show these qualities at their best came in the Aria from the "Occasional Suite" by Handel, while the considerable technical command of the band was evidenced in the "Overture for Winds" by Charles Carter and Glen Osser's "Italian Festival". A clarinet choir of 12 players performed Mozart's "Ave Verum". While being one of the few artistically excellent works on the program, this performance lacked the care of phrasing and interpretation that characterized most of the honor band's presentation.

Driver in Accident Pleads Innocent

Wayne Chapman, 22, 331 1/2 N. Garfield, driver of a truck involved in an accident on the Evermen road April 30, pleaded innocent today of a charge that he was driving at an inappropriate rate of speed when approaching a curve. Trial was set for July 25 and Chapman was held on $100 bond.

Chapman pleaded guilty to a charge of driving after his driver's license had been revoked on the same day. He was fined $35 and costs or 15 days in jail by County Judge Gustave Keller. Chapman and James Smith, 20, Appleton, a passenger in the truck, were seriously injured when the truck they were in flipped over several times when they swerved to avoid an oncoming

3 Hurt in Car Accident While Going to Church

Three persons on their way to church were injured two miles south of Seymour Sunday when the car they were in skidded off County Trunk C and overturned. Mr. and Mrs. Carlton L. Stellmacher, route 1, Seymour, and their daughter, Kathy, 14, were treated for cuts and bruises at Bellin Memorial Hospital, Green Bay. Three others in the car escaped injury.

Stellmacher told police he was driving north on C when it started to rain heavily. He said the back end of his car skidded on the blacktop and the car went into a ditch and overturned.

3 Take Papers For County Jobs

Outagamie County Coroner Bernard Kemps and District Atty. Nick Schaefer took out nomination papers today for the fall election. Both are incumbent Republicans.

Sheriff Lt. Jack Frenz became the first to officially announce intentions to run for sheriff when he took out papers today. Frenz is a Republican.

Two Democrats have taken papers seeking the Second District assembly post. Taking papers today were Fred J. Reichel, and Arnold J. Vander Loop, both of Kaukauna.

Shopper Hurt in Fall

Mrs. Helen Otto, 62, 30 Baldwin Drive, Chilton, was taken to Calumet Memorial Hospital by Lindy's Ambulance about 7:10 p.m. Saturday after she tripped and fell while shopping at Valley Fair Shopping Center.

Mrs. Otto suffered injuries to her hip. She said she stumbled as she walked along the mall.

State Says Deed Limitations Supersede City Zone Laws

Plan Commission Won't Reverse Plat Denial Decision

Court's Decision May Have Bearing on City's Master Plan

Appleton's planning commission has refused to reverse itself and accept the preliminary Meade Meadows plat. A suit filed against the city seeking acceptance of the plat will be taken to court.

Commission members said the case should be litigated as a friendly test case because similar plats are being presented to the commission, and the court's decision may have a bearing on any master plan drawn for the city.

Meade Meadows plat was turned down on the ground that the city can not serve it with sewers for a number of years. The commission felt it should not be plat until it can be served.

Filed Suit

Mr. and Mrs. Percy C. Menning filed the suit against the city, claiming that refusal to accept was unreasonable and illegal. The plat covers about 10 of 40 acres annexed to the city north of Northland Avenue (U.S. 41) and west of Meade Street.

Menning and his attorney appeared at the commission's meeting this morning. They said they have complied with all legal requirements to plat the land and that the city should accept the plat.

Upcoming Plats

Commissioners this morning held for further study a preliminary plat for Park Hills subdivision. Water and sewer services cannot be brought into the subdivision until some contiguous tracts are annexed, it was pointed out.

It was believed the court decision on the Menning case may influence decisions on the Park Hills plat.

Youth's Condition Fair After Severe Electrical Shock

A 15-year-old Greenville youth who received a severe electrical shock Saturday afternoon remains in fair condition today at St. Elizabeth Hospital.

Dennis A-shauer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ashauer, received burns to his right hand and was knocked unconscious when he attempted to repair an electric cable he cut while mowing the lawn at his parents' tavern.

The youth regained consciousness about 6:30 a.m. Sunday, but his memory remains hazy, the youth's parents said.

Appleton Asks Written Opinion From Its Legal Counsel on Ruling By Attorney General's Office

The Wisconsin attorney general's office says no city, including Appleton, has the right to rezone property that is governed by deed restrictions.

Appleton's planning commission has ordered City Atty. Fred Froehlich to research the law and make a written report.

The question of rezoning land with deed restrictions arose when owners of property on N. Meade Street near Northland Avenue asked to have a lot changed from single family to commercial and light manufacturing.

Professional Building

Dr. L. I. Christianson and Harris and Associates asked for the zone change so they could build a professional building. When the land was annexed to the city several years ago it had been commercial. But the city's policy is that new land is always brought into the city as single family.

The attorney general's office said, also, it did not believe the city could annex land as single family when it is designated as commercial in deed restrictions.

Zoning Had No Effect

Dr. Christianson and Harris Associates, an engineering firm, said they intend to build a one-story, 2,700 square foot office building. Some of the space would be rented until they need it all for themselves.

A neighboring property owner objected to the commercial zoning, on the ground that his land would become less valuable.

City Planner Walter Rasmussen interprets the attorney general's opinion to mean that the city's action to make the land single family when it was annexed has no effect, and that it remains commercial and light industrial. Rasmussen requested the attorney general's opinion after the rezoning request was turned over to him for investigation.

It is possible, he said, that the city has rezoned other land that was covered by deed restriction. If that did happen, the city council's action would have been superfluous and without effect, the planner indicated.

It was pointed out that the planning commission and the city council have no knowledge of deed restriction because copies of those documents are not filed with the city. The only way to find out is to look up each parcel of land in the register of deeds office in the court house when a rezoning is requested, or find out from the previous owner how he sold the land.

Commission members agreed that the city should get copies of deed restrictions.

Grand Chute Barn Damaged by Fire

Grand Chute firemen Sunday brought a barn fire under control before it caused much damage.

Fire Chief Vincent Baum said R. A. Huettli, 2300 N. Richmond St., the owner, discovered the blaze when he went outside about 9:30 a.m. Sunday and smelled a strong odor of smoke.

The barn was used for storing hay and tools. The fire started in the basement and burned through a small section of the barn roof before 25 volunteer firemen brought it under control. Damage was minor. Chief Baum said the cause has not been determined.

Dystrophy Group Selects LaBerge As President

Roger LaBerge has been elected president of the Outagamie-Winnebagos chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Association. This is his second term as president, an office he also held two years ago.

Waupaca County has been included in the chapter for the first time. It will be included immediately in campaigns and services of the group.

Other new officers are Mrs. Eleanor Hietpas, secretary, and James Bauer, treasurer. The executive board is made up of the fire chiefs of the various cities in the three counties. Bauer also was named delegate to the national convention, which will be in New York in June.

The chapter donated $1,000 to the national foundation for research, the second amount of that size given in the last two years.

Paper Heads Blast 3 Kennedy Bills

Oppose Dividend Withholding, Investment Credit, Tax at Source

A symposium of views of pulp published extensive comment by and paper industry leaders on the members of a "blue ribbon" panel measures now before Congress, which it described as representing shows overwhelming opposition to the 7 or 8 per cent investment credit, the proposed dividend withholding tax and the tax at the source on earnings of foreign subsidiary plants.

Opinion of these leaders was also strongly in favor of more liberal depreciation allowances and a basic overhauling of the federal tax system.

The national industry magazine Pulp & Paper, in its current issue.

Earlier this year the magazine published a similar survey, which revealed surprising support in the traditionally protectionist paper industry for virtual free trade and about support of President Kennedy's Trade Expansion Act.

State Men Included

In the symposium on taxes, ten industry leaders were interviewed. They represent both large and small companies in all parts of the country. Included were:

Henry P. Baldwin, vice president, Consolidated Papers, Inc. and Guy E. McCosken, board chairman, Thimpany Pulp & Paper Co.

All but one opposed the investment credit measure, most of them vehemently, calling it "a gimmick," "favoritism," "a chummy solution" or "an improper incentive in tax law."

The one who was unopposed said it was a step in the right direction, but not a substitute for long overdue overhauling of depreciation allowances.

A strong objection was based on the fact that the industry already has spent millions on expansion and has over capacity. Only those who continue expansion would benefit.

"Reasonably fast" writeoffs in depreciated dollars were urged. One of the executives, however, criticized industries that fail to take advantage of provisions now in the law for accelerating depreciation and for using low rates for book and financial statements and high ones for taxes.

Most of the panelists found it basically wrong for the administration to link the investment credit with a program to cushion displacement of workers by automation. Some went even further, pointing to "hidden or potential dangers" in government measures to deal with the automation problem.

Regarding expense accounts, a majority favored the tighter rules proposed by the administration to cut costs.

Stock Market Falls Sharply

Wall Street Steady After Heavy Wave Of Early Selling

By JACK LEFLER

AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A nervous stock market fell sharply today under a heavy wave of selling and then steadied. The ticker tape ran 29 minutes late.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 2.50 at 233.60 with industrials off 3.60, rails off 1.000 and utilities off 1.40.

After a brief stay on the upside at the opening, the market recoiled into its seventh consecutive session of decline.

Trading swelled. As trading swelled, the tape's lag increased. It hadn't run so late since June 27, 1950, when it trailed transactions by 27 minutes following the outbreak of fighting in Korea.

Brokers said the market may be engaged in a selling climax which, on heavy volume would technically signal a turnaround.

The market's nervousness which has been evident since the government-steel industry battle over a price increase, was heightened by the ticklish situation in Laos, brokers said.

Key Stocks
Losses of key stocks ranged from fractions to about $2. There were heavier losses among higher priced issues.

As the list steadied some losses were shaved and a few erased. AT&T lost about 2 points in the generally lower utilities group.

U. S. Steel erased a decline of nearly a point and added about half a point.

Motors were off with General Motors down about a point. GM gained a point after having been off more than 7 points.

Du Pont recovered and was unchanged after an earlier 5-point loss.

The Dow Jones average of 30 mg.

Seymour Airman First Jailed Under Keller's Traffic Law

Robert Weyers, 20, Seymour, an airman stationed at Trux Field near Madison, became the first traffic offender to be locked in Outagamie County jail after he was stopped for a violation within two hours of visiting a tavern.

Weyers was arrested by patrolman Stanley Arnold last Wednesday and taken to the Outagamie County jail, where he was held for two hours before posting $150 bond. Weyers was arrested after Hemrit and the sheriff gave him permission to lock the man up skidding around corners at a high rate of speed in Seymour.

Runaway Stole $78 From School For Florida Trip

Milwaukee police are holding a 13-year-old Appleton runaway who admitted to them he had broken into the Bardsley School early today and taken $78. He said he was going to use the money to finance a trip to Florida.

The youth left his home shortly after midnight and entered the school about 1:15 a.m., he told police. He boarded a 2 a.m. Chicago and North Western Railroad train for Chicago, police said.

Outagamie County Sheriff Department officials notified Milwaukee authorities that the youth might be on the train.

The money was taken from several teachers' desks. The money was to be used to finance a school trip and graduation of eighth graders.

Kennedy Not Antibusiness, Executives Say

Midwest Survey Finds Many Attack Federal Agencies

CHICAGO (AP) — Action, not talk, speaks loud to Chicago businessmen.

Most of the top executives interviewed in a survey of Midwestern thinking on government-business relations say they believe President Kennedy is sincere in his fighting the steel price rise—even assurances he isn't antibusiness. But with few exceptions they qualify that at once by citing deeds and trends that bring them up short.

"It's one thing to say the administration is not antibusiness," says Robert E. Brooker, who took over as president of Montgomery Ward last fall. "But that isn't very convincing if at the same time various federal agencies or departments are taking actions that harass business."

Restrictive Rules
"Many restrictive rules keep popping up. The trouble is largely at a lower level than the presidency. Officials who are antibusiness and antibigness may make the rules and regulations."

Any trend toward more federal regulation must be halted, in the view of John E. Swearingin, president of Standard Oil Co. (Indiana). He thinks government is applying pointless regulatory brakes to business in many important ways.

"Business baiting has become too popular a sport," he contends.

As to government intervention in price policies—as in the recent case of a price boost attempt by steel companies, Swearingin holds that prices for oil products "must eventually be increased, if wages, materials and the other things we buy continue to increase—although I recognize that price increases have not been a popular subject in recent weeks."

Sign of Enmity
Another oil man, who asked not to be identified by name or company, was more emphatic: "Even before President Kennedy moved against the steel firms, there was every sign of enmity to big business as such among a small but powerful group in Washington bent on deciding what's best for business."

"These men were using all the forces of government they could to move against big business on several fronts, such as antitrust suits, or blocking merger."

He added: "Business should be left alone to work out its own problems."

Robert W. Galvin, president of Motorola, electronics and electric appliance firm in Franklin Park, Ill., thinks President Kennedy isn't antibusiness himself but is moving toward a new era in which one group of officials often accused of being antibusiness will decide what's right and best for the country.

"Private business, with its downtown Warsaw, a former royal hunting lodge, where Cabot, the in many cross currents of interest, can best set the course of the economy," Galvin contends.

Attacked Methods

Joseph L. Block, chairman of Inland Steel Co., which bucked the steel price hike, disagrees with some of the methods the administration is using in policing business and labor. But, unlike many of the others, he thinks the government has the right to set forth the national interest and advise both sides in strong terms as to what it thinks would be bad for the public in general. He adds that neither side is required under present laws, nor should be compelled, to accept the government's ideas.

Most of those interviewed said their talks with other executives in the Midwestern area showed an almost unanimous opposition to the methods the President used in fighting the steel price rise—even among those who thought the hike itself would have been unwise.

The executives said they found the fear of a growing antibusiness trend spreading among their confreres, although only a few of these would say they thought the President insincere in his subsequent proffer of an olive branch.

Tuesday: What business thinks very convincing if at the same time the administration should do now.

No More Polygamy For Ghana Males

U. S., Red China Talk At Regular Meetings

Government Won't Tell What Diplomats Discuss at Face to Face Warsaw Confabs

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—There is a tiny hole in the bamboo curtain through which the United States and Communist China talk Chinese Communists?

The Americans are as inscrutable as the Chinese in their face to face here May 17 fusil to tell. Still, if next Thursday in the 110th session in seven day is typical, it is possible to piece together a reasonably educated guess on the proceedings.

First one, then the other ambassador goes through what one Warsaw diplomat calls "playing together again in about six weeks, the same old cracked phonograph same time, same place and to records."

Formosa Pet Topic
In other words, Wang may demand to know whether the United States is ready to end what the Communists call the illegal American occupation of Formosa. Cabot probably demands that Red China formally renounce the use of force as a condition to discussing the Formosa question, a demand that Washington says has no. Calif., who flies here from his times during the prolonged talks.

Cabot is usually flanked by U.S. China expert Alfred Lesesne Jenkins, 60, of Atlanta, now counselor of the American Embassy in Stockholm. He earned his own became a Communist, and is considered an able diplomat with the last American consul-general in Shanghai when the Reds took Peiping regime.

Typical Meeting
Meanwhile, what goes on in the tan-walled Mysliwiecki Palace in downtown Warsaw, a former royal hunting lodge, where Cabot, the Words Often Misused Do not say, "I've got to go now." This is a much used expression, but times and it is yours. Let us make it a much better to say, "I must create our vocabulary by mastering one word each day."

Often Mispronounced: Equine. Today's word, Cabal, secret Pronounce ee-kwine, accent on second syllable. (Pronounce kah-baal.

Often Misspelled: Consul (an of- council assembly, group). himself at a session of the cabal Counsel (advice). pledged to defeat the measures."

Why Are Some Drugs Like "Ecstasy Sauce?"

If you read "Li'l Abner" you may recall how the Gourmer's Club plotted to make "Ecstasy Sauce" from the Yokum's pet pig, Salomey. Recipe: boil down one HAMMUS ALABAMUS (Salomey) until just one single, solitary delicious drop remains—and that is "Ecstasy Sauce". In terms of food, this is humorously ridiculous, but it's actually routine in the making of drugs. Often hundreds of pounds of raw materials must be processed and reprocessed to obtain one tiny pinch of the active medication. Which helps explain why modern drugs are so potent, and why we pharmacists dispense them only when your physician writes a prescription.

Wonderful Audience

Turnabout Onstage Review Gives New Slant on MacDowell Concert

BY DAVID BROOKER
Of The Baritone Section

You were a wonderful audience Saturday night at MacDowell.

We had a lot of fun trying a few new tricks with you, and your applause when you saw the stage layout for the western numbers was a well-deserved tribute to Jim Zuleger and his staging crew. It was the first time some of us in the chorus saw many of those props and we thought the men did a first-rate job, too.

But the "feel" of the audience was evident from the time Conductor Edwin F. Zordel signaled the start of things with "John Henry" — and doesn't Bass Vic Pritzel have a voice?

Bob Lee's eyes fairly danced when he came backstage after his first group of solo numbers. "What a warm audience!" he exclaimed. Well, who can help but warm up to a man who sings the way he does?

Bob has soloed with MacDowell before, but never as guest artist. It makes you sort of proud to be able to say you sing with a chorus including a guy like that with a voice like that.

Difficult to Learn
"The Three Bells" came off better than we expected. That's one of those popular songs that proves to be more difficult to learn than some less familiar numbers, but we finally straightened out the chronology of events in the life of Jimmy Brown and gave soloist Leonard Hanstedt the kind of support he deserved.

Karel Richmond, one of four chorus charter members, came through with his usual relaxed solo job in that MacDowell favorite, "Ride the Chariot." He makes it look so easy. Clarence DeWitt, Robert Brinkman, David Schwab and Ronald Olm sounded real Latin on those gadgets they use for rhythm south of the border in numbers like "Maria My Own."

The staging for the western selections was quite a departure from the traditional MacDowell appearance but the audience obviously enjoyed cowboy get-ups, a chuck wagon and harvest moon as much as we did.

Confident Soloist
It's a little tricky trying to keep the time right when part of the chorus is downstage so far it can't see the conductor, hidden off to the side behind the curtain. That was only a minor obstacle for Tenor Clarence DeWitt, who handled his solo so confidently the chorus didn't have to "Wait for the Wagon" or struggle to keep it from rolling too fast.

Leonard Krueger was forced to share the spotlight with a four-legged stranger in "A Man's Best Friend is His Horse" but the affectionate pats he gave it between verses demonstrated the stage know-how of this 27-year MacDowell veteran.

Choir robes, a spotlighted church scene and fabulous organ work by Accompanist Daniel

Smith lent an atmosphere of reverence to the four religious numbers, dedicated to the late Kenneth Schroeder, former chorus member. Several guests thought the mood would have been sustained better if the audience had been asked to withhold applause until the curtain closed. That was the feeling the chorus wanted to convey and the suggestion is well taken.

Tribute to Conductor
Colored lights and theater marquee (courtesy of Bass Walter Nissen) added a Broadway touch to the closing group of show tunes. The audience apparently enjoyed them as much as we did because it asked for more and did not disappoint us with its reaction to "The Rooster and the Chickens" and "I'll See You Again."

That spontaneous burst of applause from the chorus in tribute to Zordel was unscheduled but it gives you an idea of what we think of Ed.

DePere Grosbeak Banded in Michigan

BY CLARA HUSSONG

The information about the banded evening grosbeak, found dead at the Brown County fair grounds, has finally reached me. The bird, found on Feb. 6 by Mark Borchardt of West DePere, was banded on March 2, 1958, by Clarence O. Owens, at Jackson, Mich.

Besides a copy of the report, Allen J. Duvall, chief of the bird banding laboratory of the Fish and Wildlife Service, sent along some information on bird banding, and a little note about the past winter's invasion of the evening grosbeaks.

These birds, which nest in western mountain regions and in Canada, appear to be extending their winter range to the southeast, Mr. Duvall says.

Other Areas
"They have been reported in recent years from the Carolinas, Georgia and Mississippi. Reports are incomplete for the current invasion of the grosbeaks but it is safe to postulate that some will be recorded in some states or areas for the first time," Mr. Duvall writes.

A number of people called or wrote to me telling of seeing these birds at their feeders with bands on their legs. It would be interesting to know where some of these other "ringed" (the English term for it) birds were banded.

"Three pintail ducks from North America were shot in widely separated places in far distant parts of the world," the brochure on bird banding says. "One duck was taken near Cali, Colombia, county fair will begin July 11 and South America; one on an island plan to have their exhibits ready, of the Pacific, and the third along the Dart River in England."

"The South American hunter learned that his duck had come from North Dakota. The weatherman in the Pacific discovered that his bird had been in northern California, more 4,600 miles away, just three months before The English sportsman found that his pintail duck, just 21 days before, had been in Labrador, some 2,200 miles across the Atlantic."

Band Numbers
The story goes on to tell about the aluminum bands the three hunters found on the legs of the birds they shot. It was through whom

Vice in Chicago Region Target Of Senate Quiz

B-Girls, Exotic Dancers Scheduled Among Witnesses

BY JAMES MCCARTNEY
Chicago Daily News Service

WASHINGTON — The Senate Rackets Committee is preparing to unfold a squalid story of vice, rackets and corrupt entertainment by union leadership in Chicago and Chicago's back yard.

Included will be stories of B-girls and exotic dancers lured into prostitution from throughout the country and even from Canada.

There will also be stories of vicious beatings administered to girls to keep them in line when they have tried to escape.

In effect, some girls have been held captive against their will in the Chicago area according to one potential witness.

Other potential witnesses have described beatings administered to night club customers some of whom were also rolled and doped.

Hearings in June
The stories will be developed in frequently postponed hearings now set for mid-June before the committee officially the permanent investigations subcommittee, headed by Sen. John McClellan (D Ark.).

B-girls and exotic dancers are scheduled to be called as witnesses along with night club owners, gangland figures and some entertainment union leaders. Committee staff members have clamored up tight as the hearings have approached, but a general picture of what will be covered can be pieced together from other authoritative sources.

The committee plans to wind up hearings on profit pyramiding in the nation's missile program before turning to vice. Hearings are also planned on the Billy Sol Estes farm scandal but the precise order hasn't been set.

Committee Cautious
Exactly how much detail may develop in the vice hearings is not yet clear, because several senators believe the committee might be accused of deliberate sensationalism if the committee goes too far.

One facet of the investigation will cover possible income tax evasion by some entertainers.

An examination of booking agencies is also intended. The spotlight at the hearings, however, will be focused on the American Guild of Variety Artists union, an AFL-CIO affiliate, whose members include dancers and night club entertainers.

The question is whether the union leadership has conspired with night club owners and with gangland figures to corrupt the ostensible purposes of the union.

these bands that they discovered where their birds had come from. Each band carried a number, and a request to send in this number to the Fish and Wildlife Service, Washington, D. C. In return, they were notified as to who banded their birds, when and where. The original banders of these ducks were also told where and by whom they were shot. Sometimes banded birds are caught again in a net or trap, or, in the case of an injured bird, by hand. In such cases, the finder should report the bird's number, where it was caught, including the county and state, and by whom.
